

Phases of Matter & Phase Changes

A solid holds its shape and does not flow.

A liquid retains its volume, but does not hold its shape.

A gas has no definitive volume or shape.

Molecules are attracted to each other through intermolecular forces.

Melting Point Solid \rightarrow Liquid

Boiling Point Liquid \rightarrow Gas

Temperature and Time Graph

